Kiddies are the most frequent victims of clothing fires, and the only safe ways to reduce this annual toll is to keep matches out of their reach at all times. Fire Commissioner's records show carelessness with matches being responsible for 79 fires last year, with a dollar loss value of $45,508. The suffering and grief resulting from burns and death are not measurable in dollars and cents. Keep matches from reach of children.

Handling straw in fall tillage

The method of handling straw, according to D. A. Dew of the LaCombe Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, is a problem in stubble land management which must be seriously considered in the fall if a suitable seed bed is to be expected the following spring.

In the black soil zone a rank growth of straw is usually encountered which must be disposed as rapidly as possible or handled in some other manner. Many farmers swath the crop fairly short and collect the straw behind the combine by bunching or baling. If all the straw is returned to the land there should be an effective straw spreader on the combine. If the straw spreader doesn't do a good job, Mr. Dew suggests that a stroke with oscillating harrows will help spread the straw more uniformly. A straw chopper is actually more effective than a straw spreader and can easily be attached to most combines.

The selection of the tillage implement for fall tillage will depend on the amount of trash on the surface. Some trash should be left for wind and water erosion control, although trash which is partly buried will normally serve this purpose. The one-way disc is the logical choice if the trash is on the heavy side since it will mix up to 50 percent of the trash with the surface two or three inches of soil. Straw mixed with the surface soil is more quickly decomposed than that laying on the surface or buried deeply.

A cultivator, either duckfoot or heavy duty type will handle smaller volumes of straw since these machines leave a larger percentage on the surface. Cultivators will mix from 20 to 40 percent of the trash with the top two or three inches of soil. Heavy duty cultivators have greater trash clearance and leave more trash on the surface.

Strange fish identified

A strange fish found some time ago in the Souris river, near the Midale Dam has proven to be the Tadpole Madtom, a fish never before found in Saskatchewan, Fred Bard, director of the Saskatchewan Museum of Natural History, said.

When found it was believed by museum authorities to be the black or the brown bullhead, and was forwarded to the University of Saskatchewan for positive identification by F. M. Atton, a member of the fisheries laboratory.

The difference between the Bullhead and the Tadpole Madtom is so minute that only fish experts would be able to tell them apart. Like the Bullhead, the fish has a heavy head, no scales, whiskers or tentacles on the lower jaw, a wide mouth, many sharp teeth and strong jaws, and is also a member of the catfish family.

It is five inches long and has a dorsal fin and two pectoral fins with sharp needle-like spines. The main difference between it and the Bullhead is that a tiny fin on the back is joined to the tailfin.

The fish was caught in the Souris river in July by J. K. Fredericksen of Weyburn.

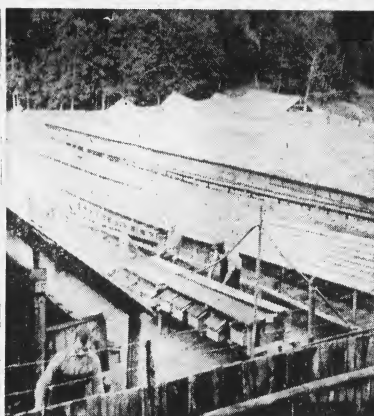

Dr. Robert W. Nero, assistant director of the museum, suggests that anyone sending fish specimens to the museum should send them in a jar preserved with alcohol or some other preservative.

Mink ranching in Saskatchewan's northwest

Halvor Ausland is a big man (six feet, two inches; 220 pounds), who likes to do things in a big way. He came to the north country 37 years ago with nothing to his name but a rifle, canoe and a few traps. Today, he's the biggest mink rancher in northern Saskatchewan.

His ranch is on the Macbeth Channel, about midway between Buffalo Narrows and Ile a la Crosse. It's an elaborate setup—a dozen buildings and several block-long rows of mink pens, representing an investment Ausland says is in the neighborhood of $150,000.

Ausland is 54, married, with a family of four girls and two boys, one of whom is recently set up in the mink ranching business.

He has made mink ranching—which he started in the late 'thirties—a science, developing several new and highly popular "mutations", and has done more than any other single person for the industry in this region.

Definition of a promise: that which is more blessed to give than receive.

From Indianapolis comes the story of a little Mexican boy named Jose who attended his first ball game late in the season at the Yankee stadium in New York. Later, he reported delightedly to his mother, "Not only do they give me free ticket, free soda, and free hot dog, but before game she said, 'How do you like that?' and shout, 'Jose, can you see?'"

Mr. Murray heard a next-door neighbor fumbling at his door for many minutes, and finally got up to see if he could help. He found the fumbler, obviously high and almost apoplectic with rage. Murray said, "No wonder you can't get in that way, old man. You're trying to insert a cigar into the keyhole." The neighbor's jaw dropped. "How do you like that?" he demanded. "I must have smoked my key!"

A hand to hold

A military general once received from Wellington a hard assignment. The general said to Wellington, "Before I go, let me shake your hand. I want with me the touch of the conquering hand."

Our Lord gives to us difficult assignments. In fact, they are too much for us. But He gives to us also His conquering hand, not to touch and leave, but a conquering hand to hold while we do the difficult thing.

He said, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Honors, rewards for dog heroes

Dog lovers and those who admire a hero will be interested in hearing of Penny, a German shepherd from Elmore, Minn., who is a runner-up for the title of the most heroic dog of 1956. Penny drove off a 545-pound boar that attacked her master, Tom Dahl, Jr., when he went to feed his hogs. The boar suddenly attacked Dahl, knocked him to the ground. Penny jumped over a high fence, pounced on the back of the animal that was repeatedly attacking the now prone farmer, and forced the boar to another side of the yard. A $1,000 bond, a gold-plated leash and collar, a gold plaque, a dog blanket and a year's supply of dog food await Penny. Let's hope Penny likes dog food and that she will enjoy a trip to Chicago to receive the reward! Something tells me Penny would be happier home on the farm at Elmore.

There are four other competitors, a sheep dog who brought help to an injured boy, a mongrel who rescued a child lost in a woods, a mischievous who saved a boy trapped in a swamp and a retriever who attacked a rattlesnake ready to strike a child. Second, third, fourth and fifth-place winners get bonds of smaller denominations and silver collars, medals and six months supply of dog feed.

Check your kick with chalk

Kicking is a fundamental football skill, especially in Canada, and a good kicker can usually be sure of a spot on the team. But to be considered a good kicker, you have to be able to get away those high spirals, and this means perfect timing.

One of the things that gives you a good spiral is the way your foot contacts the ball. Your toe should be pointed just slightly inward and the seam of the ball should be just across the instep with the point just slightly to the left of the toe.

A good way to check your foot contact with the ball is to mark the undersole with chalk. When you kick a mark will be left on your foot. In this way, you can check just how your foot is meeting the ball, and correct any faults in position you notice from the chalk mark.

Preventing "hoc-y groin"

One area in which hockey players frequently suffer injuries is the groin. A few years ago, a serious groin injury almost ended the career of Maurice Richard, and it is rarely that a team goes through an entire season without at least one or two of the players suffering this type of injury.

Now is the time to start building up the groin, the area along the top of the inside of the legs. Added strength here will not only prevent injury but also will aid your speed and agility.

The exercise we recommend is "bug squeezing". Sit down and hold a large sandbag or pillow between your knees. With inward pressure of the legs try to squeeze it flat. Hold this pressure for five or six seconds, relax and then repeat. Do this 10 or 12 times.

Start now and build yourself up for the coming season. It's the smartest play you can make.

Back up your blocker

If you're a football halfback, remember that your long runs are usually made possible by good blocking. Make sure you give your blockers the credit they deserve.

You can boost the morale of your blockers and inspire them to greater efforts if you tell them right after every good play what a great job they did and how much you depend on them. Don't wait until the end of the game—if you can inspire them to greater efforts.

Funny and Otherwise

Two guys I know decided to go hunting one morning.

"I've got the perfect set up," the first guy said. "I'll bring all the guns and such, and you bring all the provisions."

"Fine," said the second guy. And when they met the next morning the first guy was heavily laden with guns, shells, baskets and suchlike. The second guy was carrying a loaf of bread and four bottles of whiskey.

The first guy blew his stack. "Look what happens when I leave the provisions to you!" he stormed. "A loaf of bread and four bottles of whiskey? What are we going to do with all that bread?"

As two bank robbers aimed their guns at the bank employees, a third was busy cleaning out the tills and stuffing their contents into a gunny sack.

Just as they were about to leave, one of the clerks spoke up with a nervous tingle in his throat: "Please, Mr. Burglar, take the bank's books, too! Tomorrow we're expecting the bank examiners."

In a divorce court, a husband complained that his wife would not allow him to sleep. Afraid of thieves, she would awaken her if she heard the slightest noise, and make him get up to see if there were burglars in the house. This had been going on for five years.

"This difficulty can be dealt with easily," the judge said. "Just explain to your wife that thieves don't make noises; they operate quietly and don't disturb anybody."

"I've already done that, Judge," the husband said, "but it only made matters worse. Now she gets me up several times every night because she hears nothing."

After the physician checked the patient over, he asked, "Have you been living a normal life?"

"Yes, doctor."

"Well, you're going to have to cut it out for awhile."

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

EARLY CHRISTIANS SET EXAMPLE FOR BICKERING SECTS

Even in the realm of religion and the church, sects and heresies brings its problems and difficulties.

As Christianity spread and grew, these problems were two-fold. There was the problem of mingling races in a religion that, like its founder, was no respecter of persons. The Gospel had power to change the outlooks and lives of men, regardless of their color and their habitat.

And there was the additional problem of a religion that rose among one race, with its roots and foundations in one religion becoming worldwide in its scope and application.

One is impressed with the way in which these early Christians went about solving their problems. They forced the plain fact that where the Gospel was preached, Gentiles as well as Jews benefited from it.

Many converts had not been brought up in the Jewish way. They did not understand the significance or the need of rites to which the Jews had been accustomed. Jewish Christians continued to practice these rites along with what they deemed their newer and larger experience.

Should these practices be enjoined on the Gentile Christians? The wise leaders among the Jews said that they should not.

It was agreed that the Gentiles should practice the Christian way, that they should not give offense to their Jewish brethren by obtrusive disregard of Jewish customs. Neither, however, should the Gentiles be under obligation to adopt these customs except as their own consciences direct.

Would it not be well if all the problems of worldwide Christianity could be settled today upon so wise and practical a basis, and with such courteous consideration for the ideas and rights of all?

Putting atom to peaceful use

Atomic radiation facilities for research and development will be available to individual companies in Canada early next year says Rodney Touche in The Financial Post.

This first commercial irradiation plant in Canada will be powered by a 15,600-cure cobalt source, one of the largest gamma radiation sources in the world. It is to be built and serviced by Isotope Products Ltd., Oakville, Ont.

Specific application of gamma radiation includes:

Preservation of food and beverages, pasteurization of milk, meat and beer, curing tobacco, sterilization of canned goods, protection of stored potatoes against sprouting, treatment of grains and flour to kill insects and improve trawls in tropical climates.

Sterilizing pharmaceuticals.

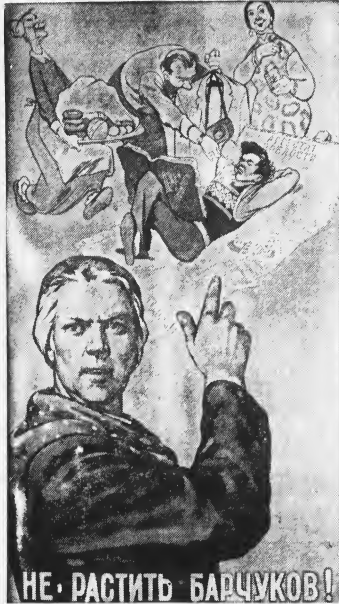

Disposal of sewage.

Improving the insulating properties of plastics and raising their melting point. Adding to the life of nylon bearings. Preventing plastic flooring being marked by furniture.

Improving the performance of electronic trawling chemical reactions at lower temperatures and pressures.

Cabbage treasure

The common cabbage is not only a valuable food but it can be used in many ways, cooked or raw. The dark outer green leaves contain more pro-vitamin A value. Cabbage can be used raw in salads, cooked as a separate vegetable or added to stews and soup. 2217

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY—The problem of juvenile delinquency is an international one. In Russia a large scale poster "warfare" is reported. This placard from the USSR shows one of the juvenile delinquents reclining at ease on a couch which bears the words "Proof of Manhood", while he reads a "Jack the Ripper" book. His doting parents and relatives are seen catering to him. A large figure in the foreground points to the group and says "Don't Bring Your Children Up To Become Playboys".

The Federal Health Department is investigating whether there have been any abuses in the use of tranquilizing drugs now sold over the counter in drugstores without prescription.

New variety of sweet clover

Courmarin is the name of an organic compound the presence of which in sweet clover gives a bitter taste. In the curing of sweet clover hay this compound sometimes changes to a substance which is poisonous to animals.

A new variety of sweet clover, almost free of coumarin has been developed at the federal Forage Plants laboratory at Saskatoon. This year plantings were made enough to produce a fair volume for further plantings next year. It will be some years before seed pocket annual of facts about Canada.)

If there is any information I can help you with just write a simple postcard or envelope a letter WITH YOUR COUPON and ask me for the information you want. PROVINCIAL GRANTS to municipalities under the Municipal Assistance Act have been increased since 1951-52 by more than $5,500,000. Grants to municipalities in the province for the 1956-57 fiscal year total $9,740,000. The following table shows you the steady increase in municipal grants:

1951-52	$4,065,029
1952-53	5,000,000
1953-54	7,000,000
1954-55	8,000,000
1955-56	9,000,000
1956-57	9,740,000

There are no restrictions on these grants. Many municipalities report that grants are spent on SEWERAGE AND WATER SYSTEMS. In many cases municipalities have found that the grant is more than enough for present needs. The Government of Alberta puts no restricting clause on how this surplus is spent. The grant is made to the municipality and it is left to your municipal authorities and you who elect those authorities as to how this money is spent to the best advantage. It is in your own interest to inquire about such things and see that this money is spent wisely.

FIVE CENTS OF EVERY GALLON of fuel oil sold to the general consumer goes to the people of Alberta in the form of Municipal Grants. In other words your Municipal Grant is made up of 50% of the 10 cent tax you pay on fuel oil.

PUBLIC WELFARE sounds like a high-falootin' phrase. Nevertheless it's something that we are all interested in. The Public Welfare Department deals with such things as pensions, allowances and other welfare assistance to Albertans.

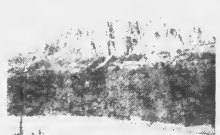

There is a very smart booklet entitled "Public Welfare Services" which is free on request and which describes the eight different branches of the Department. It outlines the qualifications you need for Federal Old Age Security, Provincial Old Age Assistance, Blind Persons' Allowance, Supplementary Allowances, Widows' Pensions, Disabled Persons' Pensions and Pensions and Allowances and also explains Hospital and Treatment Services and the Means Test.

I know you'll find this booklet interesting. You can get it by filling the coupon below attaching a little note saying you would like this twenty-page booklet.

Samuel Clemens (better known as Mark Twain), once said: "Everyone talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it." I'm going to break that rule and ask YOU to do something about it. Driving on highways and in cities can be a hazardous venture if safety isn't at all times preserved. Much effort and time is being spent to improve driving conditions and enforce safety regulations. But your cooperation is needed. With winter well on its way roads due to weather conditions, can be in most places in driving condition. Ice and drifting snow make driving dangerous. Please practice caution at all times.

SPEAKING OF DRIVING, I spent last week-end at the internationally famous scenic spot-Banff. Driving along the highway from Calgary to Banff I noticed that great strides are being made to keep this highway in top condition. Much of this construction is proceeding on the new Calgary-Banff road which will become an important part of our Trans-Canada Highway system.

MOUNT EISENHOWER, NEAR BANFF HOW LUCKY we are to live here in Alberta! To the West of us is a beauty unequalled anywhere—a top holiday and tourist attraction. In the North and in the South are prosperous regions that make Alberta a unique province. To appreciate just what this means, compare the typical Canadian Wage Rate of $64.66 PER WEEK to our own wage rate which is $23.33 HIGHER AT $66.99. Indeed this is something in which we can all take pride. Truly—OUR future IS here in ALBERTA. Be seeing you soon!

Eskimo For a Day Hoodwinks Police

by JIM BRAHMAN

Courtesy Fernie Free Press
Innocuity and a high sense of humor seem to be born into the men who follow the sea for their livelihood.

Take the case of the Canadian sailor, during the Second World War, who hoodwinked the Halifax City Police for a couple of days into believing him to be an Eskimo.

The sailor has overstayed his leave, and knew it was only a matter of time until he would be picked up by the Naval Shore Patrol. To give the patrolmen a good laugh for their money he dolled himself up like an Eskimo, including such topped moccasins, and ventured out onto the Halifax streets.

However, before he met any Naval tenders he was picked up by the Halifax police for some misadventure and held in custody until he could appear in court the following morning.

A friend, who was with the Eskimo at the time of his arrest, explained his mate could not speak English, and his name was Gertie Resolution Island, of Baffin Island, N.W.T. The reason he did not have the facial features of his stated race was because of his bond the son of a white trapper and an Eskimo mother.

The police court was packed with spectators. It seemed everybody wanted a glimpse of the man from the frozen north. With his friend acting as interpreter, the late Eskimo answered all questions in a jumbled jargon language which none could understand but his pal.

Every few minutes the "Eskimo" would bark out something unintelligible. The interpreter would then tell the man in seal-skin was asking for a cup of coffee. His vessel would be painted and court would be resumed.

After innumerable cups of coffee, an RCMP Sergeant, who had spent many years in the North and also could speak most Eskimo dialects, denounced the "Eskimo" as a phony.

The "Eskimo" with a thimble of beer chucked in the towel, admitted that he really was a sailor, but then turned him over to the Naval authorities to answer charges of why he had overstayed his leave without permission. But the city of Halifax had had a good laugh, and when a city in wartime can laugh the value is immeasurable.

"TIDE RIPS"

by JIM BRAHMAN

The second "Black Friday" of the year arrives this week.

The old superstition about Friday the 13th being unlucky comes from a notion that both Friday and the number 13 are unlucky. Together they are supposed to be the worst of bad.

Sailors are notorious 13-haters and many a ship's captain has refused to take his ship to sea on Friday the 13th.

The reluctance of seamen to sail on Friday reached such proportions that many years ago the British government decided to take strong measures to prove the fallacy of the superstition.

They laid the keel of a new vessel on Friday, launched it on Friday and named her HMS Friday. She was placed under the command of a captain named Friday and sent to sea on Friday. The ship went well and had only one drawback—neither ship nor crew was ever heard of again.

The records show Friday the 13th to be more trying a day than any other, on the contrary, many a happy occasion has occurred this day. The German composer Richard Wagner actually considered 13 to be a lucky number. His name contained 13 letters, he was born in 1813 and left school at 13. He wrote 13 operas.

The beautiful Hollywood screen star Kim Novack made her way to stardom despite the fact that she was born at 3:13 a.m. in room 313 at a Chicago hospital on February 13.

For the wary however, it is recommended to avoid the 13th wherever you can. The 13th is a day of misfortune and it is best to avoid it.

Attractive appearance of new cars creates much interest
It is the opinion that nothing exerts more curiosity every year, other than a woman's hat, than the new models of cars which local dealers put on display.
During the middle and late fall when new models arrive, this seems to be the main topic of conversation and this year, all new models which have been on display have caused more comments because of the newer designs, safety features, power, automatic gadgets, color, upholstery and many other new features connected with new cars.

This year car designers have turned out some lovely automobiles and ones which are the envy of all and all local car dealers are to be congratulated on bringing their respective cars in and giving them fine displays and information about them.

TESTING FOR THE "SILENT KILLER"—Carbon monoxide—the "silent killer"—is the real cause of many traffic accidents. That's the theory the Washington State Patrol is trying to prove. Acting Patrol Chief Roy F. Carlson says, "It is a known fact that a small percentage of CO present in a vehicle for 35 minutes to one hour can slow a driver's reaction time, affect his vision, and give him a general feeling of drowsiness." The State Patrol, therefore, has inaugurated a voluntary testing campaign. A motorist merely stops at one of the patrol's testing posts. A patrolman holds a CO tester inside the car to take an air sample and then withdraws it to make the reading. Left, Gov. Arthur B. Lange visits a testing station, manned by Lt. D. B. Rigg, center, and Chief Roy F. Carlson.

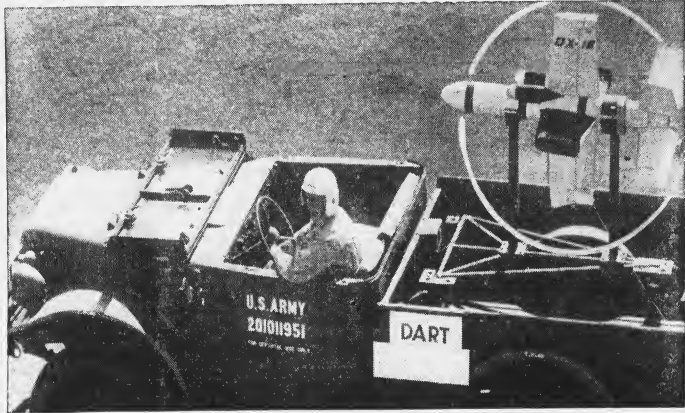

FROM THE SUEZ CRISIS: SWIFT COMPLETION—The 50,000-ton American oil tanker "Minneoma" nears completion at the shipyards in Dunkerque, France. Possible closure of the Suez Canal has speeded work at Dunkerque on super tankers of 100,000 tons—capable of sailing economically around the tip of Africa.

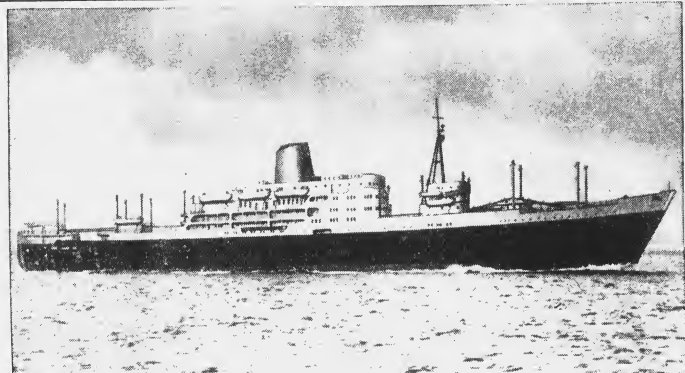

ALL THAI-ED UP IN TRAINING—Fighting efficiency of the U.S. Marine Corps is passed along by an American leatherneck to a Thailand Marine at the Royal Thai Naval Base in Sattahip, Thailand. Training program is part of a bilateral Thai-U.S. military program called "Operation Teamwork." The program climaxed with an amphibious "invasion" of Had Chao Samran Beach by Marines of the two nations.

BIG JOKE, BUT NOT EVERYONE LAUGHED—Catsup may pep up the flavor of hamburgers, but put in the hands of young, imaginative pranksters, it can wreak havoc in a community. That's exactly what happened in Bensalem and Bristol Townships, Pa. Bill Jones, arm extended, daubed his arm with catsup, then hid in a car trunk, letting the red-stained arm dangle out. Women who saw it fainted, with some requiring medical attention. One terror-stricken man had to be driven home. Though the local officers—Joe Gallagher, left, Joe Piccotti, and George Walker, right—momentarily seemed to enjoy the "joke", all was not hilarity. The nine youths involved in the prank were given a stiff reprimand and a fine for their efforts.

ARMY'S NEW ANTI-TANK WEAPON—The United States five-foot long missile is called, will destroy a heavily-armored tank. It is propelled by a rocket motor burning smokeless fuel.

BRITISH ROYAL MAIL LINES, LTD., has placed orders for the construction at Belfast, Ireland, of three passenger-cargo ships like the one shown in this drawing. Representing the largest order ever placed by the Royal Mail at one time, the cost of each vessel will be about $13,500,000. The 20-ton ships will accommodate 100 first-class, 100 cabin-class and 270 tourist-class passengers. The keel of the first ship will be laid in June, 1957. Delivery will be made in September, 1959.

"NO COMMENT"—Actress Kathy Grant, 24, who is considered by many in Hollywood to be the next Mrs. Bing Crosby, is shown at a benefit performance for a new hospital at McArthur, Calif. The crooner with his son, Gary, stand behind a fence while other entertainers perform during benefit. Miss Grant and Crosby, accompanied by Phil Harris and Alice Faye, "went fishing", taking the secret of their marital plans with them. Asked about his marriage plans, Crosby said: "No comment."

Masonry paint on walls helps keep basement dry

Fall is "fix-up" time and the inundation of basements in many areas has brought a new surge of activity beneath the ground level. Hundreds of basements are being waterproofed and converted into "do it yourself" workshops, recreation centers, utility rooms, and laundries.

Rejuvenating clothes

What a difference a good press job makes! It immediately conveys the neat, clean look. That is because spots must first be removed, wrinkles are abolished and most of the original texture of the garment is restored. To help lighten your dreaded pressing chores Miss H. Moscon, clothing specialist, Alberta Department of Agriculture sends along a few hints.

Pressing differs from ironing in that the motion is a lower and lift one rather than a sliding motion. A light touch should be used and care taken that the garment is not overpressed. First test the heat of the iron on an underneath seam allowance. Then to avoid the imprint of a heline, press from right side over extra padding such as a turkish towel. This pressing over a soft surface also prevents a shiny zipper placket. Use strips of paper under seam allowances that tend to mark the right side of the fabric.

Pressing is usually done on the wrong side of the garment with moisture supplied either with a steam iron or a damp press cloth. If some parts of the dress need right side pressing, protect the fabric from the heat of the iron and prevent shine, by placing a dry press cloth over fabric before steaming it. A good right side dress cloth is a soft wool one. That brings to mind wool or wool like fabrics, which should be brushed to raise the nap prior to pressing.

As a general rule, press from wide to narrow part of the dress sections, for example, from the hem to the waistline of the skirt, armhole to waistline of blouse, armhole to bottom of sleeve. Press with the grain of the material whenever possible.

As a finishing touch, place the pressed garment on a well-shaped hanger and leave until well aired and completely dry. That "out of a handbox look" now belongs to you.

Household words

It is a lot of fun to read about the different "family words"—they are so original and always give us a good chuckle. Our son, when still preschool age, coined the one most popularly used around our ranch.

He was particularly fond of raw carrots, firm and very crisp, during that before-supper period when the aroma of roasting food makes one famished. One evening I gave him a carrot from the cellophane bag in the refrigerator. He turned it over in his hands a few times, finally took a small bite and handed it back.

"It doesn't taste good. Mother," he explained.

I examined it and found it rather wilted, with much of its zesty flavor gone. Since then, anything in an unfresh condition, from a jaded head of lettuce to a crumpled shirt collar, is "fleppy."

Many fixer-uppers include teenagers who are looking forward to the big winter frolics. There are plans for hobby rooms and student "museums" in many homes.

With masonry paint now available in a wide variety of colors, homeowners are finding that attractive rooms for many purposes are possible in their basements.

Ingenious youngsters in a Michigan community have completed what they call their "marine room" by painting a rippling blue-and-white water pattern with brilliant colored fishes on the walls. They have acquired an old upright piano which they have painted to match the walls and their mother has put up sea-blue drapes with a ship design.

On the floor they have painted a shuffleboard pattern. This winter the "marine room" will be the fun center for a lot of youngsters in the neighborhood.

While they are "doing over" the basement, some households will give their walls a flagstone effect with the masonry paint or paint a shuffleboard pattern in the patio.

Martin Kennedy has some suggestions for waterproofing basements in attractive colors.

He recommends that a first step before using masonry paint is to thoroughly clean the walls, giving them a "brisk going over" with a wire brush and then washing them down. He said that any efflorescence (that's a high sounding word for salts in the masonry) can be removed with etching acid and then neutralized with rinse water. If there's whitewash or calcimine on the walls this must be removed. A good scrubbing with hot water should do the job.

Water-soluble, resin-based paints can be removed by a 20 percent solution of muriatic acid and rinse water, while oil-based paints require one pound of lye to a gallon of water. In both cases, Mr. Kennedy advised using rubber gloves to protect the hands from strong solutions.

A better bond between the wall and the masonry paint is obtained if all previous paint is first removed.

The next step—lightly dampen the walls (after they have dried out from the cleaning) before the application of paint. He emphasized that the masonry must not be soaked, merely wetted down. It is recommended that the paint be applied with a scrubbing brush, being careful to fill all depressions and small cracks. Scrub the paint into the corner formed by the wall and the floor and coating at least an inch of the floor along the wall.

VARIETY IN HAT STYLES is the order of the day for Princess Margaret during her tour of East Africa. At present she is on a 10-day visit to Tanganyika. Here she wears six different afternoon models during her first two tour stops—to the island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean and port of Mombasa in Kenya.

British soldiers vacation in Israel

British youth, who a few years ago were forbidden by their parents from visiting Israel because it was "too dangerous" a country are now holidaying there on short leaves from army duty in Cyprus. Hon. Yehuda Golan, Consul General of Israel told the opening luncheon of the National Council of Jewish Women, Montreal Section.

"War is not the solution for the current Middle East situation," he said. "It takes longer to build than to destroy. Israel does not want war, but for eight years our military strength and we are prepared to continue that military strength as long as any threat of extermination to us as a country remains."

Half a million Jews, mainly from North Africa, but also from behind the Iron Curtain, found a home in Israel last year. But in order to keep this number coming and in order to meet present defence needs, Israel needs the support of Jews all over the world, he continued.

JUNIOR FIRST AID

When children acquire cuts, burns and scratches, they may continue to play in the dirt unless they are taught that such injuries should be kept free from dirt and germs. It is a good idea to teach bigger children the elementary principles of first aid so that they can cleanse and cover these injuries with a dressing. The handy ready-made dressings should be kept available in the home where any member of the family can use them.

RABBITS FROM EUROPE. Rabbits were unknown in England until introduced from Central Europe in the 12th century.

Others tell us...

Canada, it seems, is in danger of becoming too prosperous. Canadians are trying to do too much in too little time. At least, that is what James Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada, believes. He has asked business men and others to slow down their building plans because there are not enough supplies and workers for the total $8 billion program of construction this year.—Physical resources and facilities could not take care of the requirements of a program of that size.

If the builders have to compete for materials and labor, of course, the cost of both starts to climb. There is enough inflationary pressure on the economy already. So Mr. Coyne's warning is sensible and simple. But not so simple is the translation of his theory into practice.

This year's construction program is made up of thousands of projects—New factories and additions to old ones, new roads, bridges, schools, houses, pipelines, powerhouses, seaways. The municipal, provincial and Federal governments are responsible for a very large part of the program. Should the industrialists put off their plans until 1957 or 1958 to help the governments complete their projects? If they do, they may weaken their competitive position enough to make them unable to do next year or the year after what they want to do now, or the cost of building in 1957 may be too

Saving yourself from fire

What would you do—what would your family do if fire should strike within the next few seconds? How would you save yourself from painful burns and even death?

It's worth your life to know the right answers, said provincial Fire Commissioner Ross Switzer in passing along this Fire Prevention Week advice on saving yourself from fire:

1. Get out of the house the minute you discover a fire or smell smoke.

2. Don't fling open doors if you think there's a fire—feel the door first. If it feels hot, you are safer in your room. If the door is cool and there is no pressure, you may crawl through the hallway to safety.

3. If the door is hot, block it with furniture or a mattress (preferably wet) to keep out dangerous smoke and gases. Stuff the crack beneath the door with a wet cloth or sheet. Open the bedroom window slightly, and call for help. 4. Remember the air is usually better near the floor in a smoke-filled building.

5. Hold your breath and cover your face if you have to make a dash through fire or smoke.

6. Don't jump or drop from upper-storey windows except as a last resort—wait for firemen.

7. Never go back into a burning building for any reason—smoke and fire gases from even the smallest fire can be deadly.

8. Unless it's a small fire that you're certain you can control with the right extinguisher, get away from it and call the fire department at once.

9. Always be prepared to use different escape routes from your home in case of fire—important to remember this, when entering any other building.

10. If you're burned or exposed to fire and smoke, get medical treatment as soon as possible; seemingly minor burns or smoke inhalation can have serious results.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

GRUMBLING

Grumblers are commonly an idle set. Paying no disposition to work themselves, they spend their time in whining and complaining both about their own affairs and those of their neighbors. —M. Henry.

Every one may see daily instances of people who complain from the mere habit of complaining. —Richard Graves.

Just as you are pleased at finding faults, you are displeased at finding perfection. —Johann Kaspar Lavater.

Let thy discontents be thy secrets. —Benjamin Franklin.

Had we not faults of our own, we should take less pleasure in complaining of others. —Francis de S. Fenelon.
